

Bees

Fun fact for kids

Bees live in colonies with a queen, workers, and drones, all working together for survival.

Bees: Vital pollinators for food crops and wild plants. No bees, no reproduction for many plants.

Bees are excellent team players. They work together to build the hive, care for the young,

Bees communicate through intricate dance movements known as the waggle dance.

Within a bee colony, there is usually only one queen bee whose primary role is to lay eggs.

Bees have fuzzy bodies that help to collect pollen. The pollen sticks to their hair, and they carry it from flower to flower

Bees are crucial pollinators, responsible for pollinating a large variety of crops and wildflowers

There are over 20,000 species of bees worldwide, ranging from tiny stingless bees to large bumblebees.

A worker bee lives for about six weeks during the busy summer months, while a queen bee can live up to five years!